

As the River Flows

Ryan Meeboer

This lyrical piece is composed using ternary (ABA) form and gives every part an opportunity to shine. Filled with rich use of harmony and a flowing melody, As the River Flows is a great way to teach an ensemble the expressive style.

After the introduction sets up the mood of the piece, the first melody is brought in by the first part, supported by parts two and three. Part three introduces the second melody at measure 21. Part one adds some motion at measure 30, as the piece builds up to the contrasting return of the A melody and measure 37. Be sure that there is a sudden drop in dynamics at this time.

The piece then builds up again at measure 45, to close with a beautiful melody in part one, backed up by a drone. Be sure this melody is easily heard and is not covered up here.
